SITUATION SUMMARY

Hoopa Valley Tribe Water Shortage

- On 06/27/15 at 1325 hours the California State Warning Center was advised by the Cal OES Tribal Liaison Duty Officer (TLDO) that the Hoopa Valley Tribe, Humboldt County, was requesting a 2-3 day supply of bottled drinking water for approximately 150 people. The request was increased to a confirmed final total of 300 individuals for 3 days.
- A conference call was held between Cal OES, Humboldt County, the Hoopa Valley Tribe, and several other Agencies / Stakeholders including FEMA, State Water Resource Control Board on 06/29/15 at 1300 hours. Notes from the conference call were forwarded to all parties on the call including the Hoopa Valley Tribe.
- Water treatment plant is currently working off of their back up system and is producing at half normal capacity. It has been discovered that a black thick substance has been growing on the filters of the water treatment plant. As a result, the plant has to be turned off to clean the skid filter. Indian Health Service (IHS) has attributed this to warming river water causing water plants and algae to grow at an accelerated rate.
- Eric Lamoureux, Cal OES Inland Regional Administrator and Denise Shemenski, TLDO, have reached out to Nestlé who advised that they have agreed to donate and deliver a truck load of 22 pallets of water to the Tribe. Delivery logistics are being coordinated with the TLDO with local road weight and trailer length limits being primary obstacles at this time.
- The Tribe and all associated stakeholders are researching all funding options available to mitigate future water needs to include mutual aid agreements and local agreements between the County and Tribe.
- State Water Resources Control Board (SWRCB) stated that there is funding for tribal governments which can be used for bottled water. Possible funding available for testing water and a pump. Department of Water Resources (DWR) reports that they can provide water testing strips.
- The SOC will continue researching availability of water hauler trucks for the Tribe.
- A follow up conference call has been scheduled for 06/30/15 at 1300 hours.
- Cal OES Duty Officers are gathering information and providing updates as they become available.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

WEATHER

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

Very hot afternoon high temperatures across interior northwest California will persist through the work week. Late night and morning coastal cloudiness will give way to afternoon sunshine.

Medford Weather:

Daily records will likely be broken with Thursday being the hottest day.

Reno Weather:

Hot temperatures will return this week as high pressure strengthens over the Great Basin. Moisture will remain trapped underneath ridge will allow for a chance of thunderstorms each afternoon through the 4th of July weekend.

San Francisco Weather:

A significant warming trend will continue across inland areas through Wednesday as high pressure builds over the western United States. Moisture will also make its way for Wednesday into Thursday which could also lead to a few showers and thunderstorms.

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Sacramento Weather:

Very hot weather can be expected for the remainder of the week. Some sierra thunderstorms throughout the week, though some may move into portions of the valley late in the week.

Hanford Weather:

Monsoonal moisture continues to flow over the area producing showers and isolated thunderstorms to the desert and mountain/foothill areas through Thursday. Otherwise partly cloudy skies and above average temperatures continue to persist.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

A warm and humid air mass will continue over the area throughout the week as high pressure remains over the Great Basin. Southeast flow aloft moist and unstable air will continue a slight chance of thunderstorms and shower over the mountains and deserts. A cooling trend is expected toward the weekend as low pressure approaches.

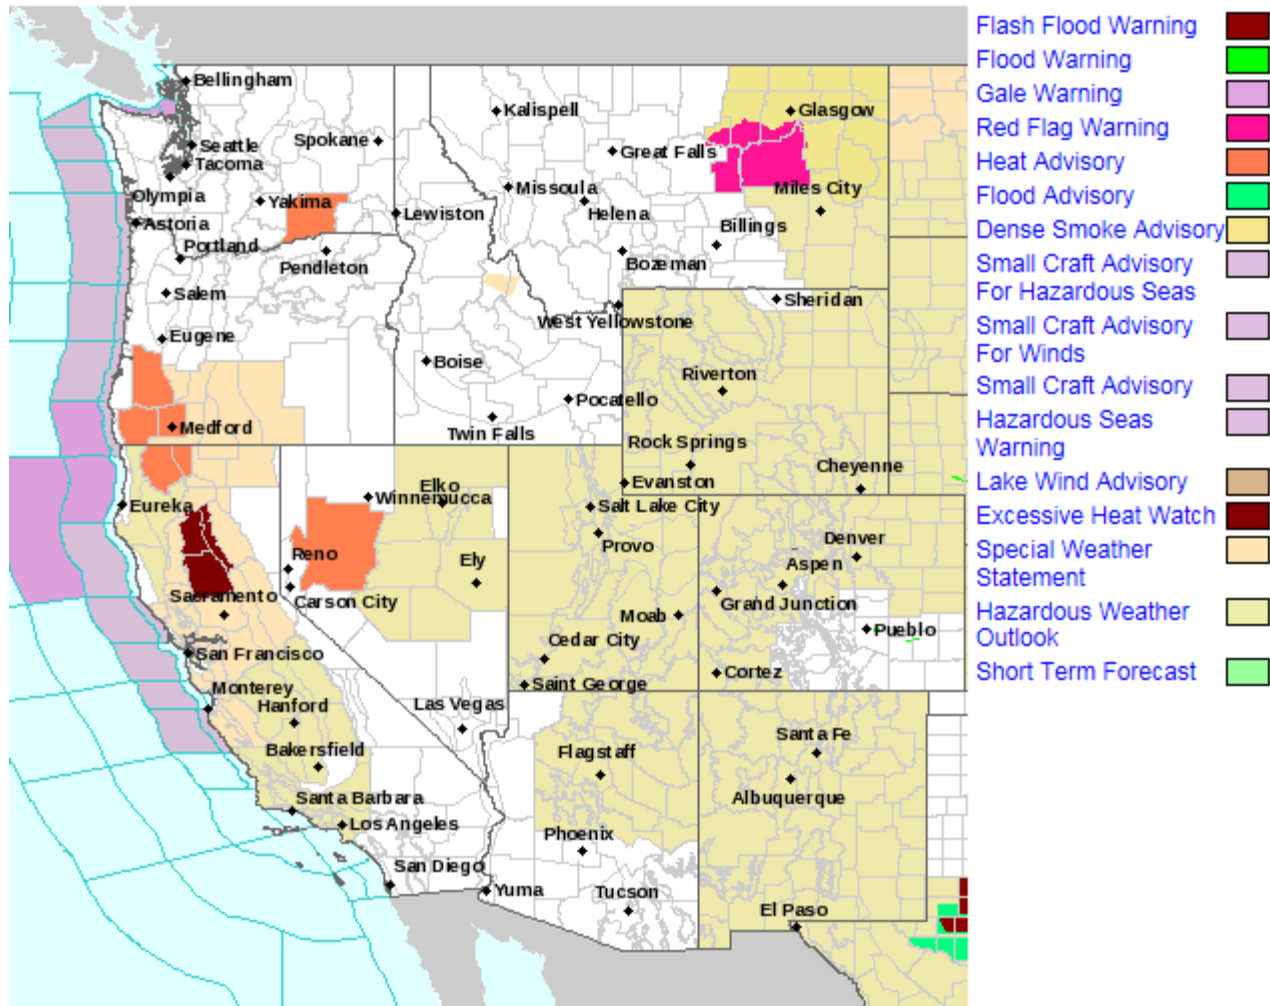

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

High pressure over the Great Basin and low pressure off the California coast will direct a flow of mid and high level monsoonal moisture across southern California for much of the week. This will support a chance of thunderstorms through Thursday, mainly near the mountains and portions of the deserts during the afternoon hours. Minor drying is possible for Friday and Saturday with another chance for afternoon thunderstorms for the mountains and deserts Sunday and Monday. Temperatures will peak today, and then cool to near average for Friday through early next week.

Southeast California Weather:

There will be some opportunity for showers to affect lower elevation desert communities during the middle of the week; however the most likely outcome will only be gusty winds and some blowing dust. Afternoon temperatures will remain slightly above normal this week before moderating back down towards normal by the weekend.
